My main concern is the right to open source without it being invaded, i mean there is so much of a economy for open source who were scared away from properiary & i believe that open source should not be allowed to give ahead the oppertunity to steal open source & then patent it & claim it as their own as no one else has patented it & it makes no sense & is a pivotal issue for the economic survival of such a open minded type of traits of incorporations & that needs protection, that is if there was already prior work before a patent, & is capable of public knowledge, Its like telling them to change something already signed & its patenting open source is a good way to make corporate filth & we need it to be solved

Thanks
