Dear Industry Canada,

While I like the fact that proposals new cell towers under 15m will be made public, I think this should apply to all cellular antennae, not just towers. If you think people are concerned about a tower below 15 meters high, why don’t you think they would be concerned with a tower on a building or a hydro pole, which could be even closer to people?

Industry Canada needs to change its rules further to let citizens know where all of these antennae are.

Sincerely
