Municipal Regulation of Cell Tower Siting

The fact that Industry Canada can and regularly does ignore the wishes of municipalities in regard to siting of cell towers - as it did in the case of Rogers tower in Charlottetown PEI in 2009 despite a unanimous municipal decision against doing so - is an assault on democracy. It also violates our Charter’s guaranteed right to security of person. Further, it ignores the Precautionary Principle, and supports instead the rights of corporations over the rights of individuals.
