Just wondering why we are ignoring the facts and so far behind other European countries in making necessary changes, given that we are also concerned about our health care system...which will be taxed to the limit when the health effects from not heeding the scientific evidence take effect.